DR. SIMON NEWCOMB,

Celebrated astronomer, is the only American official to receive a foreign decoration of any kind in the past eight years. He was lately authorized by Congress to accept from the Kaiser the order "Pour le Merite fur Wissenschaften and Kunste." Professor Newcomb has indeed received more foreign honors by far than any other American. He is an officer of the Legion of Honor, is the first native American. He is an officer of the Legion of thore, is the first native American since Franklin to be made an associate of the Institute of France, has received exalted degrees from ten European universities, is a member of about thirty foreign societies, has received five medals from abroad and had his portrait ordered by the Czar for the Imperial University of Russia, while both the Imperial University of Japan and the Imperial Observatory of Russia have presented him with handsome testimonial vases in recognition of his contributions to science. Pugh had treated his request for me dorsement. The result was that Pettus beat Pugh for re-election by an overwhelming majority, and remained in the Senate until his death, a few years ago.

"Uncle Joe" Suffered.

There are many instances where men of more or less prominence have auffered at the hands of restless constituents. In the great Democratic alump some years ago, even "Uncle Joe" Cannon went down in defeat, and was forced to stay out of Congress for at least swo years, after having been there since a time "when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary."

The same voters who turned "Uncle Joe" out turned him in again at the next election, and shortly afterward no was elevated to his present excited position as Speaker of the House. But these unaccountable things nappen to Democrats as well as to Republicans. Political cyclones, in other words, have no particular regard for porsons or parties. A few years ago one of the hurricanes hit what is known as the "Swamp Angel" District of Missouri. For many terms the brilliant editor, lawyer and platform lecturer, Champ Clark, had been its representative in Congress. This time his people got out of humor about something, and they elected a traveling plane tuner to Congress over Clark. This was an erratic move, but not more so than the next election, when Clark, having made up with his constituents, swept the district.

There are erratic people all over the country, but at this time the Second Congressional District of Missers.

Texas Bears the Palm.

There are erratic people all over the country, but at this time the Second Congressional District of Texas holds the palm for fickleness among its Democratic voters. This is in the famous Beaumont oil section, and is perhaps the wealthiest district in the Lone Star State. Strange as it may seem, it has what might be properly termed an alternating representative in Congress. Sam Bronson Cooper, a brilliant lawyer, who was born in Kentucky, has represented the district off and on for the past sixteen years. Cooper stays in one term and is beaten for the next. This is his time to be out in the usual course of events, and he has just been defeated for renomination by W. A. Dies by a small majority. Four years ago a man named Moses Lycurgus Broocks defeated Cooper, and two years later the Beaumont lawyer regained his hold and was returned. Now he is "down and out again," but if history repeats itself in his district, he will have to wait only two years before returning to his old seat in the Federal Congress.

Misses Alice Brooks and Lillian Lee Thaw left on Thursday for Charlette.

Miss Londa Koiner, of Richmond, was a guest of honor at a card party given in the far Southwest which is as fickie in politics as the Second Congressional District of Texas. Perhaps it is more so, for though the Texas may change party nominees, they are always Democratic one year and Republican the next with an exactness which is almost like clock work. Lunches With Mr. Mack and Awaits Coming of Daniels.

NEW YORK, August 2.—Colonel Henry Watterson, of Louisville, Ky., chairman of the press committee of the Democratic National Committee, was a luncheon guest to-day of Norman. E. Mack, the Democratic chairman. The other guests were Roger C. Sullivan, member of the committee from Illinois: Urrey Woodson, national secretary, and Mrs. Mack.

Mr. Mack does not believe in doing political work on Sunday, and he spent a free day. He made no appointments, and the only consideration given campaign work related to the literary question, which was discussed to some extent with Colonel Watterson and Mr. Sullivan. Josephus Daniels, of North Carolina, who will have active charge of the press work, is expected here soon, and Colonel Watterson will await his coming.

An appalling amount of mail is arriving daily at the Hoffman House, and Mr. Mack is impalient to get head-quarters opened here and in Chicago, in order to take care of correspondence.

Districts That Swing From Republican to Democratic Column and Back Again as Regularly as Pendulum of Clock.—Some Notable Instances.

By C. A. Boyce.

To one who makes even a casual study of American politics, the subject is made more and more of an enigma, and the fickleness of the voter is made more and more apparent with each passing event.

Not only are the varying inclinations of individual voters shown in their switching from one party to another, but their erratic disposition to change from one favorite to another in their own clan is frequently demonstrated.

Democratic party leaders, for example, who fought most earnestly for Mr. Cleveland in 1884 and 1888, were violently opposed to him in 1892. This was especially true in the South. If the roll should be called, it would be found that Daniel, of Virginia; Pugh, of Alabama; Vest and Cockreil, of Missourl; Gorman, of Maryland, and many other Souther men of promit.

Abox of Ivory Soapcan you think of a better wedding present? True, it is somewhat out-of-the-ordinary, but that is in its favor, rather than the reverse. And Ivory Soap is very much more useful than cut-glass, silver and things of that sort. Any grocer will gladly fill your order for a box of Ivory Soap; and will deliver it where and when you tell him.
